primitive future

Future architecture is about going back to the beginning. The future of architecture and the beginning of architecture are connected. Then, what is the beginning of architecture?
Is it a material? Is it natural? Is it a body? Is it about gathering? Is it information? Is it communication? Or is it something that comes before function? Is it a nest? Is it a cave?

Students are required to re-invent the beginning of architecture, departing from where each deem is the beginning of architecture. Present it as a real space, not just a concept. The semester will be divided in three parts and students will work alone and in teams.
